SPACED-OUT NEWSPAPER . . .

I am sharing the podium with an interesting Phd candidate from the Ernie Pyle School of Journalism at Indiana University next week.

He is John Ahlhauser, whose lectures and thesis work is oriented in the "Electronic Newspaper", which took him to England in 1976 to study the British electronic delivery of news through BBC, Reuters News Service (whose features your Herald carries) and decoding devices being built by Texas Instruments, of Dallas and England.

John was a staff photographer for 25 years at the Milwaukee Journal and Sentinel, president of National Press Photographers Assoc. in 1967 - 68 and recipient of NPPA's highest honor, the Sprague Award this July.

He is considered all but preeminent in electronic news transmission, reception and the alternatives in understanding receivers or news scanners yet to be designed.

So what brings us together in Houston for National Newspaper Association? Not melgamania or fantasy, but some hard interest in where the electronic elements of this industry will be perhaps in another decade, not more than two.

We discovered a similarity of military experience in technology, though his was almost 10 years ahead of mine. He produced a videocassette on the "Electronic Newspaper" for a master's thesis at U of I four years ago and has lectured about 25 times around the country on the implications and developments, which read like a "horror story" to established print media.

He and I apparently were heading in the same direction in the early 1970s. The British are ahead in this field because of the government-owned BBC system, I suppose, and the fact they are a much smaller country whose focus is London.

Neither discovered the world of technology just a few years ago. I had the challenge of training and testing the survey crews of the Army's First Provisional Rocket Battalion at Fort Sill, Okla. and ranging on the first operational Honest John Rockets outside Aberdeen Proving Grounds. During that period, one unit of our 532nd Observation Battalion ranged on ground detonations of atomic warheads at Camp Desert Rock, Nevada. Yet another tested armored artillery units at Fort Hood.

I guess by the time I was lucky enough to see the tooling up process on the Apollo 11 moonshot in May-June, 1969, I was hooked on "tomorrow's newspaper." John has put his version of it on film.

His background in photography enables him to visualize what I have to draw rough sketches of and discuss as printout news scanned across TV sets.

I may be the more practical, though numerous ones would quickly doubt that. What we both anticipate is probably bad news to the print industry, because they have been going through a technical revolution for about 10 years.

Considering every household has more than one TV set statistic, meaning many of them have two receivers, we agree that electronic newspapers are inevitable, not to the exclusion of print, but as a definite alternative, a companion if you will.

This is the kind of stuff John is going to discuss and I am going to enlarge upon, Texas style.

The hometown for NASA's space center is a pretty good place for NNA to hear it.

City Youth To 'Trick-Or-Treat' For UNICEF

Members of the junior high and senior high United Youth Fellowship will Trick-or-Treat for UNICEF this Tuesday evening from 6 to 7 p.m.

The group will meet at the First Methodist Fellowship Hall at 5:30 for their assignments and will proceed from there to cover the city. Mr. and Mrs. Mike Zajicek are counselors for the high schoolers and Coach Paul Hoelscher counsels the junior high group.

Residents of Cameron are reminded that 8¢ can provide the penicillin to cure a child's infection, 27¢ can help to immunize three children against polio and 49¢ will buy a book to train a villager in first aid.

The response to the UNICEF program in the past has been most encouraging and it is hoped the response will be even better this year. So expect a trick-or-treater between 7 and 6 p.m. who will be collecting for a worthy cause.

Milam Farm Bureau Resolutions Reflect Current Ag Problems

About 370 Milam Farm Bureau members and guests Thursday night attended an annual county convention at VFW Hall.

Following a barbecue dinner, the group watched a screening of a slide presentation on Farm Bureau services and began discussion of resolutions proposed by writing and from the floor. Vice president Reeves Brown led the discussion and votes.

Substance of the nine resolutions voted follows:

1. That the use of throw-away bottles be stopped except for use as pesticide containers.

2. That Farm Bureau bring pressure upon the railroad companies to cause them to stop causing so many fires along right-of-ways. A screen placed around the fire box would be a suggestion.

3. That Farm Bureau sponsor a national effort in cooperation with all other interested organizations to bring about a set-aside of 30 to 40 percent of all major agriculture production that is profit deficient (feed grains, wheat, cotton, etc). The new farm law does mot remove enough acres from production to substantially improve our over-supply depressed price situation.

4. That effort be made to get a modification of that portion of the new farm law that dictates a farm's base acreage in order to allow exceptions in the law for unique and exceptional circumstances.

Example: A farm being purchased that was not farmed in 1977 and has a large percentage of crop land on it that the purchaser intends to use to produce revenue for payment toward the debt of the farm and the farm was purchased between the time of the 1977 crop year and the announcement of the regulations for 1978 crop year would penalize this purchaser unfairly.

6. That a committee be appointed to serve as a watch dog on the valuations and assessment of assets in the county.

7. That effort be made toward getting the county commissioners court approval of disaster aid for Milam County.

8. That the proposed resolutions be published or announced before the county convention.

9. Be it resolved that support from local press be sought for the broader announcement of the present farm crisis in which we now find ourselves. We express our appreciation for any and all support and accomodation they give.

United Way Helps Salvation Army Aids 143

(Another in a series about local agencies that benefit from United Way. A drive for $10,000 gets underway in Cameron today.)

A total of 143 persons received aid from the Salvation Army in Cameron last year from October, 1976 to the end of September this year. Help was given to 107 local people and 36 transients.

People needing help that is not available from other agencies are sent to the Salvation Army unit in Cameron by churches, police, the minister's association, or the welfare office. The Salvation Army can provide help immediately to someone who cannot wait, or is not eligible, for aide from other sources.

For the transients, funds were spent last year for lodging, meals and groceries, and for transportation. Aid for local people included groceries, utilities, rent, clothing, shoes, cash assistance, and other aid. ~~Som~~ $588 was spent for local help and $155 was spent on transients.

One-third of the money received by the local Salvation Army service unit stays in the city for the local program and two-thirds is reserved for Salvation Army's broad statewide services in which Cameron is entitled to share.

State Salvation Army services are available for problems that cannot be handled by the local unit alone. A community struck by a tornado or flood, for example, would need the statewide help of the Army to get effective relief.

The Salvation Army will help in locating a missing person or provide contact for a prisoner up for parole.

The Army's Harbor Light Center works with rehabilitating alcoholics, and the Army also maintains the Home and Hospital in San Antonio for unwe mothers.

Forrest Sapp is chairman of the local unit and Wayne Wieser is treasurer.

What Panama Means....

By summer, we heard how the inequities of the 70-year-old Panama Canal Treaty were being worked out in a treaty which would allow Panamanian control by year 2000.

The Senate is not enamored with the Canal Treaty which has been negotiated and signed by President Carter and the signatories of Panama and related interests. The public sees the new treaty as a give-away of what is ours, a la Ronald Reagan who says we built it and paid for it.

The Carter administration has hit an early impasse in momentum. Panama is only one element of administration policy and legislation which is mired in misgivings.

The Senate must ratify the Treaty newly presented to the Congress. The U. S. House even has members who want to intervene for a vote not required by the Constitution because they consider the Canal Zone part of the U. S. territory.

The truth is people are weary of a nation who used to "walk soft and carry a big stick", a la Teddy Roosevelt whose administration built the canal after the French started and faltered. It took the discovery of controls for malaria and making ice to carry the work through the early pre-World War I years.

The old treaty contains language clearly favoring the victor of those swashbuckling American years, the U. S., who a few years later intervened in the first world war and provided the heft to buckle the Hun.

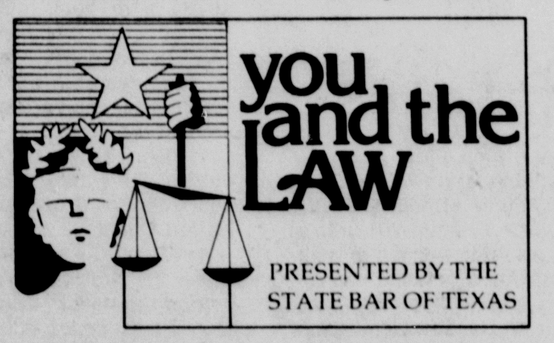
Americans have been losing almost ever since WWI not because we lost WWII, but because we won it and became peacekeeper and rebuilder everywhere we won or somebody else lost.

The Senate senses the public thinks this is yet another retreat from the American dream or myth that we win or used to win all our wars, lead the world in understanding and stand the bulwark to unmitigated mischief like Cuba or Vietnam or Lebanon.

We don't believe much of that anymore, but we yet don't know what new to dream. And without an alternative, the American public falls back on its public school 20th century history to remember "when."

The public mind may not be ready to exchange now for "when". Ronald Reagan's advocacy may have the ear of enough people who write letters, control votes and crystallize public opinion.

The Carter Administration may be putting Panama along side Energy as the two issues which determine success or failure in this term of Congress and whether Mr. Carter is a one-term president.



Q: Six years ago I had an illegitimate child. His father claimed him and has been paying child support ever since. The child was given my maiden name. I am now married by the Texas common law, and I use my husband's name. Can my child's name be changed to my husband's without being adopted? And, how will this affect the child's real father who is paying child support?

A: First of all, the child's name can be changed to that of your husband without your husband adopting him. To do this, a petition must be filed in district court. The child's real father would still be obligated to pay child support even if you do this.

Q: Though I am single, I would like to draw up a hand-written will. Would it be legal?

A: Requirements for wills in Texas are simple. If you are 18 or older and of sound mind, you can make a will. Also, if you are under 18, but married or in the armed forces, you can also make a will. A will in your own handwriting is legal if it is written out in its entirety. If it is typed or printed, it must be witnessed by two or more at the time you sign it. To make sure the will will accomplish what you want, however, you might want to let a lawyer take a look at it.

Send your questions to "You and the Law," State Bar of Texas, P. O. Box 12487, Austin, 78711. Answers may appear in columns in hypothetical terms; personal answers not possible.

Police: Law Enforcement In A Free Society

By Jerome H. Skolnick

Editor's Note: This is the 10th in a series of 15 articles exploring "Crime and Justice in America." In this article, Jerome H. Skolnick of the University of California, Berkeley, discusses the problem of reconciling order, maintained by the police, with individual freedom. This series was written for Courses By Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. Supplemental funding for this course was provided by the Center for Studies of Crime and Delinquency, National Institute of Mental Health.

Police are often regarded as the thin blue line between anarchy and order -- and there is some truth to that notion.

Whenever police services have been removed from a city -- as when police strike -- crime has risen, although not always by as much as expected. Still, it has risen enough to make most citizens uncomfortable. There is no question that police perform an essential public service. Yet the first formal police department in the Anglo-American countries was not instituted until 1829, in London.

England had sorely needed a major police force for three-quarters of a century. The industrial revolution had encouraged migration to the cities.

Unemployment and economic hardships following the Napoleonic wars led to widespread riots and protests over the climbing price of food. And the rise in urban crime reduced safety in streets and homes. "Society," wrote one historian of the period, "was in violent transition."

Still, most Englishmen -- from Tories through Radicals -- expressed greater fear of police than of crime and riots. Parliamentary commissions considered and rejected the police idea in 1770, 1793, 1812, 1818, 1833, amd 1828. At the time, police on the European continent were often oppressive, corrupt, and arbitrary -- and seemed the relevant model for England.

The problem was, as it always is for a society valuing political freedom, how to reconcile governmental power with individual freedom.

FREEDOM AND ORDER

Sir Robert Peel, the Home Secretary, addressed the dilemma in several ways: First he spent several years reforming the criminal law before introducing his Police Act in 1829. He realized that the new police would not be successful if required to enforce inconsistent, irrational or exceedingly punitive laws.

Peel and his associates also distinguished the police from the army -- feared and mistrusted by the populace -- in two respects: Scotland Yard would not accept applications from senior military men for ranking positions in the new policies.

Moreover, the "Bobbies," as they came affectionately to be known after Sir Robert, were not to carry firearms. Deadly weapons were for the external enemies encountered by the army. The police regulated citizens and required guns only for emergencies.

Still, the new police were trained to be and to look authoritative. Uniformed police were carefully instructed to be fair and imperturbable. Force, when used, was to be measured, limited, and minimal.

Finally, and most importantly, Peel established the linked ideas of police accountability and public support. Just as police ranks were to be drawn from the class of working people to insure citizen support, police were to be accountable for their actions to Parliament and the courts. These linked ideas -- legal accountability and public support -- were the tools to resolve the dilemma between freedom and order.

Although America was also a "free society" with laws and institutions modeled on England's, no American police department was so carefully planned and organized as Scotland Yard. The first full-time United States police force was formed in Boston in 1837, after roving bands of Protestant rioters destroyed nearly every Irish home on Broad Street.

AMERICA'S SPECIAL PROBLEM

Unlike the English police prior to the 1960s, American police, from the 1830s to the 1970s, have been involved with often tragic ethnic and racial conflict This has generated special problems for American policing.

For example, New York City experienced a riot in 1900 that grew out of competition between Irish and blacks for jobs and living space. The police did not stop the white rioters who were beating the blacks, they joined them.

In a country with a history of immigration, rapid territorial and economic expansion, and slavery, the quality of law enforcement has often depended upon the question "whose law, whose order?"

THE POLICE FUNCTION

Nor has the police function ever been clear in the United States, either to the police themselves or to the general public. Most police like to think of themselves as crime fighters.

Studies have shown, however, that about 80 percent of a police officer's time is spent providing a wide variety of community services and peacekeeping functions such as giving directions, handling traffic accidents, and resolving family disputes. Less than 20 percent of an average patrolman's time is spent on crime-related activities.

Police enforce the criminal law by arresting violators and providing prosecutors with evidence, so as to lead to a conviction -- no easy assignment. But police are not usually able to catch criminals in the act. That is why the recent "sting" tactics, where police pretended to "fence" stolen goods but actually photographed the seller and tagged his wares, have been so successful. These records show exactly who did what crime, where, and when.

Ordinarily, police must rely on street informants -- themselves involved in crime -- for information about crime. In return, police can offer the informant immunity from arrest or some other "break" in the administration of justice.

This practice creates serious problems about the equity and efficiency of police procedures. I once conducted a study of vice detectives and burglary detectives in a respected urban police department. The vice detectives used burglars as informers and did not inquire about their burglaries, while burglary detectives used addicts as informers and ignored their drug offenses.

POLICE DISCRETION

Since police departments have limited resources, police must employ considerable discretion in carrying out responsibilities.

Police chiefs set priorities, employing personal values and departmental standards to govern conduct. Every student of police agrees that this police "culture" heavily influences how police conduct themselves on the job.

Often, police employ discretion sensibly and responsibly. At other time, discretion can deteriorate into police malpractice. Malpractice refers to a broader spectrum of behavior than police corruption. Corruption normally suggests the sale of official authority for personal gain, whereas malpractice includes not only corruption but also mistreatment of prisoners, discrimination illegal searches, perjury, planting evidence, and other misconduct committed under the authority of law enforcement.

Police culture -- especially unwritten codes of conduct and solidarity -- is of critical importance here. New York's Knapp Commission found in 1972, contrary to public thinking, New York police corruption, no worse than in many other city police departments was not attributable solely to "rotten apples." Where malpractice exists, it usually spans entire police departments.

Policemen everywhere experience feelings of isolation, public rejection, and hostility in a job characterized by danger, authority, and the pressure to produce. Consequently, policemen build up intense feelings of group loyalty, coupled with deep suspicion of outside interference.

In most American police departments there is a stubborn refusal at all levels to acknowledge that malpractice problems exist, especially corruption.

In the long run, the police themselves, the community and victims of crime will best be served by police accountability for the quality of their policies and work. Television programs to the contrary notwithstanding, the U. S. Constitution does not envision police as asphalt cowboys, riding herd on crime and disorder in the central cities.

Police are government officials, armed by law, whose monopoly on force is a public trust in a free and democratic society. They fail when they are transformed into distant and mobile authorities, encased in vehicles, remote from the communities they serve.

Patrolman playing with a resident of New York's Lower East Side, August, 1973, in an attempt to promote the idea that policemen are guardians of the people as well as guardians of the law.

Sir Robert Peel understood that when he created the first Western democratic police organization. His ideas about how to reconcile policing and freedom -- in periods of rising crime and social turbulence -- scarcely seem dated.

Home Economist Offers Tips On Cooking the Metric Way

AUSTIN–If you're really into the metric swing, you may want to expand the Celsius system into the kitchen, says the Texas Department of Agriculture home economist.

Suggested internal cooking temperatures for most meat cuts have been officially determined by meat scientists, home economists and food technologists, she says, and are listed here:

Beef–Rare, 60 degrees C; Medium, 70 degrees C; Well-done, 75 degrees C.

Pork–Fresh (uncured and unsmoked), 74 degrees C; Cook before eating hams, 70 degrees C; Fully cooked hams served hot, 60 degrees C; Cured and smoked picnics and shoulder rolls, 75 degrees C.

Lamb–Rare, 60 degrees C; Medium, 70 degrees C; Well-done, 75 degrees C.

Veal–75 degrees C.

The switch to Celsius does not change the way you cook meat, she reminds, only the way you measure internal temperature.

Exercise Controls Health Problems

Your doctor recognizes the importance of exercise to health.

The American Medical Association points out that exercise, or lack of it, is often a significant factor in the control of obesity, diabetes, heart and circulatory problems, orthopedic problems and emotional disorders.

Fitness developed through vigorous activity and exercise can be preventive, as well as therapeutic, in nature.

In a positive sense, health includes abundant energy and vitality. A healthy person is physically fit when he can perform his daily work and tasks without undue fatigue, maintain adequate reserves of energy to enjoy recreational activities and leisure, and meet the challenge of unexpected demands. These might be running to catch a train, quickly climbing several flights of stairs, shoveling snow, or jacking up the car to change a tire!

Can you go up several flights of stairs without severe discomfort, chest pain, or having to stop before you reach the top? You would expect to be puffing a little at the top, but this should subside in a few minutes if you are reasonably fit.

The best exercise is doing something physically active which you enjoy, with the exercise aspect secondary. If you enjoy swimming or tennis, or handball, these are excellent sports for exercising most of the body. Golf is good for the tired businessman.

Most of us find it difficult to exert the mental discipline to keep at a program of daily calisthenics purely for the sake of exercise.

Yoe Blanks Hornets 17-0 In Homecoming Tilt

By Mike Peck

Rain did'nt dampen the spirits of Yoe fans or participants Friday night at Yoe Field as the Cameron Yoemen blanked the Caldwell Hornets 17-0 in Homecoming 23AA district action.

Defense prevailed in the opening stanza as neither the Hornets or the Yoemen could sustain the drive needed to score. It was not until midway through the second quarter that the Yoemen finally dented the scoreboard.

The Yoemen received a Hornet punt, setting up shop on their own 11 yard line. The Yoemen traveled a total of 89 yards in 18 plays to reach paydirt. Sophmore tailback Dean Lewis did the honors for the Yoemen, carrying the ball in from thirteen yards out for the score. Timmy Matthews added the extra point kick for the Yoemen and with 6:43 left in the game the Yoemen were in control 7-0.

On Homecoming night the Yoemen could hardly be content with only one score in the first half of play so they added a 23 yard field goal just for kicks. The field goal was set up after the Hornets had driven to their own 38 yard line, and faced a critical fourth down and one situation, needless to say the Hornets went for it, meeting a determined Yoe defense who simply said no and the Yoemen owned the ball with good field position.

With one minute left in the half Timmy Matthews sprinted onto the field, booting a 23 yard field goal that split the uprights, giving the Yoemen the advantage as the half ended 10-0.

A defensive standoff in the third quarter kept the end zone on both ends of the field free from traffic. The Hornets gained good field position only once in the third quarter, that being from their own 49 yard line, but the Yoemen halted that drive before the stunned Hornets could get rolling, as Yoemen David Rosemond picked off a halfback pass from Hornet Ricky Carter to kill the drive.

With 1:49 left in the third quarter, the Yoemen set up offensive shop on the Hornet 30 after Yoemen #44 Nathaniel Whitfield recovered a Hornet fumble. This time the Yoemen traveled thirty yards in 9 plays using almost 3 minutes of the final quarter to score. David Rosemond was the name this time as he was called on to take the pigskin across the goal from one yard out to set the Yoemen way out in front. Timmy Matthews point after kick was again straight and true and the Yoemen were comfortably out in front of the Hornets of Caldwell 17-0.

Caldwell threatened once in the fourth quarter driving from their own 30 yard line to the Yoe 11. Quarterback Jeff Garbs went to the air, but the air was no advantage as Yoemen David Cummings reached high, intercepting the pass in the Yoemen endzone, ending the drive and setting the Yoemen up on their on 20. With 4:59 left in the game the Yoemen played it safe, keeping the pigskin in a strong running attack that ate up the remaining time in 12 plays, and it was Yoemen 17 Hornets 0.

The win boosts the Yoemen's season record to 4-3 and their district record to 3-1. Caldwell drops to 3-4 for the season.

Defensive standouts for the Yoemen were; #88 Peter Riola, #44 Nathaniel Whitfield, #25 John Schmidt, and #55 David Cummings.

Yoe offensive leaders were: #32 Dean Lewis with 102 yards in 26 carries, #22 David Rosemond with 41 yards in 12 carries and #12 quaterback Wayne Steamer with 27 yards in 11 carries.

The Yoemen will host the Hearne Eagles in another district 23AA clash this Friday night.

Yoe Frosh, Caldwell Battle To 30-30 Tie

The Cameron Yoe freshmen remained undefeated Thursday but barely, as they journeyed to Caldwell and settled for a 30-30 tie. Both teams were undefeated for the year and they remained undefeated although Cameron did have 2 more penetrations if you want to get technical.

In the first quarter Cameron opened up the scoring with a 40 yard pass from QB Allan Sapp to Brent Duncan for the touchdown. James Mondrik missed the extra point and the score was 6-0.

This was to be the first for awhile as Caldwell struck back scoring on runs of 60 and 50 yards -- and ran both extra points to lead 16-6 over Cameron. Late in the second quarter Caldwell also intercepted a pass and ran some 50 yards for a score and again ran the extra point making the score at halftime 24-6 Caldwell.

In the third quarter, the Hornets scored again on a 40 yard run and missed the extra point, upping the score to 30-6.

From this point on, Cameron took over the game, as Duncan started the scoring on a 40 yard run and then Billy Lowe connected on a 2 point flag to Duncan for the extra making the score 14-30 Caldwell.

Then still in the third Rusty Crummer scored on a 35 yard run and also ran the PAT as Cameron closed the gap to 22-30.

In the fourth quarter Cameron drove to the 10 and fumbled, but with 1:42 left in the game QB Lowe threw a 40 yard TD pass to Crummer and then Lowe carried the ball in for two points, tying the game at 30-30, and that is the way the score ended as Caldwell was unable to move the ball and the clock ran out.

In the second quarter, Jeffery Gelner scored on a screen pass of 40 yards but this was called back because of a clip. Cameron may have done a poor job of tackling, but showed a lot of class coming from a 6-30 defeat to a tie.

The frosh record now stands 5-0-2 for the year and 2-0-1 in district. They will meet Hearne next Thursday there at 6 p.m.

Joe Christie To Oppose Tower For Senate Seat

Joe Christie, a six-year veteran of the Texas Senate and former chairman of the State Insurance Board, has announced he will run for United States Senator against John Tower.

Christie told a news conference Thursday he was convinced Texans are ready to turn Sen. Tower out of office.

"My campaign will be more than a carbon copy of John Tower's because I am convinced that Texans want a change in Washington," Christie said. "My 10-year record of public service offers Texas a choice for a change."

At a dinner in his behalf two days before the announcement, Christie singled out high utility bill, the financial problems of farmers and ranchers, government waste and the need for a better school system as issues that would be important in his campaign.

"These are not new challenges," Christie said. "Yet John Tower can't point to one bill, one act, one law conceived and passed by him to meet these challenges."

According to the National Governors' Association, the purpose of the White House energy conference is to continue debate of state and federal perspectives on selected national energy policy matters, and to strengthen the foundation of a productive state and federal relationship.

The six hour murder mystery which stars James Coburn, Benson Carroll and Jason Miller will be broadcast nationwide in the spring of 1978.

The eighth grade of the Rogers schools has elected class officers for 1977-78. Keith Mikeska is president; Lonnie McKinzy is vice-president; Lisa Bruggman, secretary - treasurer; and Joan Green, reporter.

Fire Prevention Week was a busy time in the Rogers schools. The elementary students were treated to a fire control demonstration on Wednesday afternoon at the school, when Bob Green, Rogers fire chief, made a talk on fire prevention and safety, which was followed by a question and answer period.

Following the talk other firemen, Mimmy Adams, Wayne Payne, Frank Reisner and Barber Hill, assisted Chief Green in starting two fires and then extinguishing them.

The third, fourth, and fifth grades of the school had a fire prevention poster contest, Winners were: third grade, Eddie Schulze first; Kathy Billeck first; Jason Parker second; Kim Jones third and Shana Patterson third. Fourth grade, Mark Tepera first; Tammy Vrana second, Stacy Eixman third. Fifth grade, Billy Joe Billeck first place.

Hope Warren shows her trophy won for second place in the primary division of the fire prevention poster contest. With her are Thomas Harwell, left, assistant fire chief, and L. W. Turner, treasurer for the volunteer fire department.

Halloween is a children's playday that should be fun and practical. Instead of buying Halloween paraphernalia, consider letting children make their own.

Here are some do-it-yourself projects.

Halloween Cat -- cut a large cat's head, body, and tail from black construction paper. Glue egg carton cups with glass marble centers on the cat's head for wild eyes. Attach the head, body and tail with brass brads. Change the cat's position to make him look as if he is falling, running, frightened or just scary.

Jack-o-lantern mobile -- cut an irregular ring out of heavy orange paper. Cut three triangles and one moon-shape out of heavy black paper for the eyes, nose and mouth. Don't forget the stem for the pumpkin. Hang the eyes, nose and mouth on strings to dangle inside the orange ring. Hang the mobile by a longer string attached to the stem of the pumpkin.

Paper plate mask -- draw a scary face on a heavy paper plate. Cut out and/or paint the facial features on the plate. Use rug yarn or straw for hair. Punch a hole above the ears on each side of the plate. Attach a shoe lace on each side and tie around the head.

Noise makers -- large, dried gourds painted with scary faces make excellent Halloween noise makers. The seeds inside the gourd make a nice "shushing" sound.

A small paper bag painted or decorated in a Halloween theme can be filled with dry beans, pop caps or jingle bells and attached to a stick. This is a great hand rattle.

And for Halloween, every child yearns for a Jack-o-lantern. There are a few rules to follow in making this Halloween favorite.

-- Select a fresh pumpkin. The size will depend upon your needs and the amount of money you want to spend.

-- With a sharp knife, core out a small lid at the top (large enough to get your hand in the pumpkin.)

-- Remove the seeds and fiber from inside the pumpkin.

-- Draw the desired face on the pumpkin with a pencil or crayon.

-- Carve the Jack-o-lantern, following the design you drew.

-- Place a votive candle in a candle glass or small can inside the pumpkin.

-- When the candle is burning, remove the pumpkin top to prevent scorching the top. Burn your Jack-o-Lantern and enjoy its glow a long time.

-- Once Halloween is over, make all kinds of goodies out of the pumpkin meat. If your pumpkin is too large to use at one time, freeze it and use the pumpkin later to celebrate fall harvest.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Question: I am 50 years old and I received a Medicare card in the mail yesterday. Is this correct? I thought you had to be 65 to be eligible for Medicare.

Answer: The Medicare card you received probably belongs to you. People who have been receiving disability benefits for twenty-four consecutive months are eligible for Medicare. If you are not receiving disability benefits, you should contact your social office since it would then appear there was an error made.

Question: I have a mentally retarded child. Several friends have told me I should file for Supplemental Security Income benefits for him. His father works and supports us. Do you think he would qualify?

Answer: You did not mention the age of your disabled child. If he is under 18, the amount of the parents' income and resources are considered in determining eligibility. If he is out of school and eighteen or older, only his income and resources are considered.

If you will contact a Social Security representative, we will be glad to assist you in filing an application or determine whether he can qualify. It will be necessary to have an exact record of the family's income and resource amounts.

Question: My father died last year and I receive Social Security benefits as a student. I am past eighteen and would like to start working part time. How much could I earn and receive all my survivor benefits?

Answer: This year you can earn $3000 without losing your Social Security benefits. If you expect to earn more than that amount, inform your Social Security office.

Next year you will be allowed to earn up to $3240. You will lose $1 from your Social Security benefits for each $2 you exceed that amount.

Question: My doctor has informed me that I have to undergo surgery and will not be able to return to work for 3 months. Am I qualified for Social Security benefits?

Answer: Social Security law states that in order to qualify for disability payments a person must have a severe physical or mental impairment that is expected to prevent him from engaging in any type of work for a period of twelve months or more or to result in death.

Since you expect to be working in less than twelve months, it does not appear you qualify. If you would like a formal decision, you should contact your Social Security office and file an application.

Do you have a question about Social Security? Drop us a line: Social Security Administration, W. R. Poage Federal Building, Temple, TX 76501; or call us toll free by dialing the operator and asking for Enterprise 8-6795. A representative of the Temple Social Security Office is at the third floor of the courthouse in Cameron every Tuesday.

The Schillers: Michael, Marie and Bobby

SCHILLER PHARMACY--
70-YEAR TRADITION
SKILL, SERVICE

Three generations of skilled pharmacists practicing at the same location for 70 years has made Schiller's Pharmacy a store of tradition in Cameron.

E.O. Schiller Sr. opened the pharmacy in 1907, and it has continued to be operated by the Schiller family. The late E.O. Schiller Jr. became a partner with his father in 1946, and in 1973 his son Bobby followed, opening Schiller's Script Shop in the Mariam Professional Building.

Upon his father's death, Bobby took over the downtown store and now Mike Zelisko is the pharmacist at the Script Shop.

Both pharmacies offer fast, accurate prescription service, and a medication record is kept on each patient. Consultations on prescription and non-prescription medicines is invited.

Schiller's downtown pharmacy is conveniently located for shoppers, and for those who don't want to go downtown, prescriptions can be filled at the Script Shop which is located in the Miariam Professional Building next to St. Edward Hospital.

Delivery at no extra charge is available.

The downtown store also offers a full line of non-prescription medicines and first aid supplies. Other items stocked which may be recommended by the family doctor are vaporizers, heating pads, and ice bags.

Schiller's is justly proud of its photo supply department, where Kodak and Polaroid cameras and film are sold. Flashbulbs are available, and so is a film processing service.

A line of vet supplies is carried, along with medicines and flea collars for family pets.

Schiller's has in stock fragrances and makeup by some of the most famous names, such as an entire line of Faberge fragrances, makeup and treatment line; Second Debut makep, Mabelline makeup, Ultra Sheen makeup for Blacks, Chanel and Nini Ricci fragrances.

For men's grooming needs there are British Sterling, English Leather, Old Spice and Brut. There is als a selection of men's and women's personal grooming items including hair dryers and shavers, and hair brushes.

The shopper can find a greeting card for any occasion in the store's display, and select a box of famous Pangburn's candy for a thoughtful gift.

Adding to shoppers' selections are Foster Grant and Polaroid sunglasses, Shrade Walden knives, Timex watches, office and school supplies, wall and alarm clocks, and attractive stationery.

Right now Schiller's has a "bargain table" where some items are priced as low as 10 cents.

The Schiller family is proud of its history and tradition, but is also looking to the future to better serve their customers.
